Summaries should be no more than one page, not including references. If an under-review or published paper has more than one page, the authors need to submit a one-page version of the paper and specify as a footnote the name of the conference at which the original work is published or under review. You should summarize the motivation, contributions, methods, and evaluation schemes of the research conducted by the authors.

Summaries should conform to ACL style guidelines. LaTeX style files, along with a style guide, are available at <https://github.com/acl-org/acl-style-files>. Authors may NOT need a separate "abstract" section in your submission. Please include all names and affiliations in the summary.

Summaries reviewing will NOT be blind. All accepted summaries will be non-archival; authors can submit them to subsequent conferences.

We understand that preparing a one-page summary takes extra effort, especially for authors with cross-submissions in other NLP venues. However, it helps create a more coherent and manageable review process.

Cross-Submission Policy: MASC-SLL 2025 welcomes submissions that are under review or have been published at recent scientific conferences. Please double-check the policies of those conferences to make sure that submitting to non-archival venues is allowed. At the time of submission, we will ask the authors to indicate whether the submission is unpublished, or is a short version of an under-review or published paper.
